Tuesday afternoon a number of Kentucky and Tennessee editors accompanied the members of the Clarksville press on a trip through Dunbar's Cave. In Great Relief Hall the party came up on something that every party exploring the Cave has not found. Indeed, it is said to be a phenomena that appears only on such occasions as this was. The party lingered around this pleasant find for some while, making speeches, relating anecdotes, &c., and the longer they stayed the livelier was the flow of eloquence, and the more spicy the stories they told. The Moon and the Weather,

If there is any connection between what is commonly called "a change of Herndon, Young & Co sold for the week the moon" and rainfall do you think that Mr. Sexton can explain why it is that the rainfall covers such a very small portion of the area that is covered by the "change of the moon?" For instance the moon changed in at Hampton's Station, but they got no rain there. It changed the same time at Hopkinsville, but they got no rain there. If the "change of the moon's caused a rain here, why did it not cause rain over the whole area covered by the change of the moon? There hasn't been a week this summer but what we have had rain in some parts of the Clarksville District, and at the same time no rain in the other parts, and yet any day that the moon changes, in one part of the Clarksville district, it changes the same day in every part.
